Dear Sir/Ma,

REPORT OF STUDENT MISCONDUCT IN THE LIBRARY
(AKILO TOLUWANIMI – YEAR 10 EZEKIEL)

I write to formally report an incident involving Akilo Toluwanimi, a student of Year 10 Ezekiel, which occurred in the school library during the Add Mathematics period at about 9:00 a.m., and later during the ICT period on the same day.

At about 9:00 a.m., the student came into the library and was observed sketching on the back of a Bible. I approached him and explained the importance of utilising the early hours of the day for productive academic activities. He stated that he was tired. Upon further enquiry regarding his sleep and the previous day's activities, he confirmed that he slept well and had a stress-free day. I encouraged him to engage in academic work, but he defiantly continued sketching.

During the 5th period, when his class was scheduled for ICT and the ICT teacher was unavailable, the student returned to the library and continued sketching in the same Bible, which was later identified as belonging to Eunice Agbonifoh. I insisted that he engage in productive activity, after which he brought out a book from his bag. Shortly thereafter, I again found him sketching. Consequently, I collected the Bible from him and requested that he hand over the pencil. At this point, the student became unruly. I instructed him to quietly go and meet his class teacher, and he left the library.

When the period ended, the student returned to the library while I was checking out a book to Sharon Aremu, demanding the Bible. I informed him that it would not be released at that moment. He rudely questioned my decision and suddenly became aggressive and violent. He smashed two chairs, kicked several chairs and tables, overturned a library reading table set (Table 13, 14, 15 & 16), screamed, cursed, and verbally abused me, stating clearly, "You are very stupid." His actions caused serious disruption and posed a safety risk within the library.

I immediately asked Sharon Aremu to call the Principal. The student then walked out of the library, still making utterances that were not clearly comprehensible and said directly to me at the door "No one cares about you" before he left. The Principal arrived shortly afterwards, and I narrated the incident. Sharon Aremu corroborated the account. The Principal took photographs and video recordings of the scene, after which the library was rearranged to restore order. Later, the student returned when other students came to use the library and offered a subtle apology.

This incident involved verbal abuse of staff, destruction of school property, and gross misconduct, which significantly disrupted the academic environment of the library. I respectfully submit this report for the attention of the school administration and for any disciplinary action deemed appropriate.

Thank you for your consideration.

Yours faithfully,

Morris Okereke
